« I PERSONALLY HOLD TWO POINTS PROPOSED BY JAPAN ON THE DEATH PENALTY » SAYS CHRISTIAN FERLAL SCHUHL -----

In the framework of this G7 of Lawyers, the delegations of lawyers of the seven countries, representing 1.8 million lawyers, signed the joint declaration on 20 proposals that will be made to the heads of state on 24, 25 and August 26 in Biarritz.

For the NBC President, "this resolution demonstrates the ability of lawyers to come together around a strong word." "I personally hold two points: the declaration proposed by Japan on the death penalty. I salute the courage of my Japanese fellows and the lesson they give us: it is not because the public opinion is against one's values, "that they must do to oneself. As far as artificial intelligence is concerned, this morning we were auditioned before the Sherpas of the seven G7 countries. And our proposal to prohibit exclusive recourse to algorithms to make court decisions has aroused more than interest, "adds Christiane Féral-Schuhl. Despite some "differences", participants emphasized the strength of their shared commitment to advocacy: "Every dollar invested in legal aid works to reduce social and domestic violence," said Canadian Ray Adlington.

Throughout the two meetings, held in Paris, on 11 and 12 July, on the sidelines of preparations for the G7, the seven delegations of lawyers from member countries adopted, for the first time, a joint resolution. This should be presented to the heads of state at the G7 summit in Biarritz at the end of August. In terms of figures and numbers, in the US, for instance, there are 1,8 M members of the American Bar Association members, versus in Germany, 60 000 are members of Deutscher Anwaltverein, and 70 000 in the French National Council Bar. In the UK, there are now 140,000 practicing solicitors in England and Wales according to the Statistics released by the Solicitors Regulation Authority (SRA). As far as Japan is concerned, Board of Committees on International Affairs of the Japan Federation of Bars Associations, there are approximately 10 00 lawyers members.

Later on, Christiane Feral-Schuhl, acknowledges : "I personally hold two points: the declaration proposed by Japan on the death penalty. I salute the courage of my Japanese fellows and the lesson they give us: it is not because the public opinion is against one's values, "that they must do to oneself. She adds, then « There are hundreds of Chinese in Custody, still.

Whereas Canadian Ray Adlington, President of the Canadian Bar Association, adds : "Despite some "differences", participants emphasized the strength of their shared commitment to advocacy: "Every dollar invested in legal aid works to reduce social and domestic violence" . and he added : « As far as Death Penalty is concerned, Bob CARLSON - President of the American Bar Association, (USA) explains that : « The American Bar association calls for all of the delegates as we have a statement on the row. Now, we have policies, if the State or government or the government beneath the national policies against enforcement . Everyone at the 18th year of majority and who suffer from disease or disability.

THE G7 BARS REQUEST THEIR RESPECTIVE GOVERNMENTS TO CONSIDER THE FOLLOWING SEVEN PROPOSALS & RECOMMENDATIONS IN DIGITALISATION-----
